July 2013

Dear Colleague:

Greetings! The International English and Professional Programs at UC Davis Extension’s Center for International Education is pleased to enclose our brochure for 2013-2014. Students and their parents can expect a lot of support and attention from our staff and teachers, both in programs and resources, such as our Multimedia Resource Center. In our programs, students can learn about U.S. culture, improve their English language skills and prepare for undergraduate or graduate study in the United States—not to mention live in our beautiful town of Davis, and enjoy Northern California—home of the Napa Valley, the organic food movement and bicycles!

- Our Intensive English Program is offered year-round, and students at the intermediate level and above may choose the Service Learning Volunteer Experiences elective, which deepens their understanding of U.S. society as well as develops their leadership and career skills (see pages 9-10, 15-16).
- Our Communication and Culture Program is designed to help participants improve their communicative fluency and offers an intensive learning experience within a short time frame (see pages 11-12).
- Our English for Science and Technology Program is designed to help international undergraduate and graduate students and professionals become more comfortable using English as a common language in science and technology (see pages 13-14).

- Our new English for Global Business Program improves participants’ knowledge of global business and English language proficiency. For details, please visit our website.
- Our Customized English and Pre-Academic Programs provide our educational partners with the opportunity to design custom programs that meet the particular needs of groups and individuals (see page 17).
- Our Programs for Global Educators draws on our capacity of teacher-trainers to develop customized programs for educators looking to innovate, inspire and lead educational reform (see page 18).
- Our new Business Certificate Programs in Innovation and Sustainability are designed to help international professionals work more effectively in creating socially and environmentally sustainable organizations (see pages 19-22). As a leader in sustainability, UC Davis recently received the nation’s most visible award for sustainability with the Sierra Club’s Sierra Magazine (2012-2013) ranking UC Davis as the #1 “Cool School” in America for its efforts in advancing sustainability knowledge and practices.
- Students who want to continue their academic studies can also take one of our Professional Studies Programs. UC Davis Extension offers many certificate programs of interest to international professionals (see pages 23-24).
